

1) Kevin Stallings is a coach that has gained a great reputation over the years at Vanderbilt.
 2) Here is a nice set that they ran the other not vs. St. Louis.
 3) It starts with the wing running up the floor to set a ball screen for the point guard to get going down hill. Immediately that wing rolls back into the post and the ball side post fills back to the top of the key.

1) The point guard looks to reverse the ball to 5 at the top of the key while 4 screens away from 2 on the otherside of the floor.
 2) Knowing your personnel here is key here. Make sure that your post player has the ball skill to be able to handle the ball facing the bucket.

1) Here the post player will put the ball on the floor to make a dribble hand-off for the opposite wing who has came off of the down screen from 4.
 2) On the interior, 3 will set a cross screen for 4. This could prove to be a good option for to get the ball in the post.

1) Once 5 hands the ball off, he went and set a screen for 3.
 2) Here his shooter took a 3 from the wing. Another option would be to look at the post player posting up on the block.
