

SECONDARY: DRAG FLOPPY (WATKINS)

- 1) Kris Watkins coached HS basketball in the Atlanta area for several years. He comes from a family of basketball coaches as his father is a long time HS coach with over 600 wins and his brother coaches one of the top girls teams in the state of Georgia currently.
- 2) While at South Cobb HS, Kris was known for his uptempo style of play putting up large amounts of points each night.
- 3) Here is a break package that his teams would run specifically off of free throws.

SECONDARY: DRAG FLOPPY (WATKINS)

- 1) After the point guard received the drag screen from the trailing 4 player, often times the 4 player would be open on the slip around the free throw line area.
- 2) The ball side wing would run baseline and receive a pin down screen from the other wing. While the first post player down would run to the opposite block.

SECONDARY: DRAG FLOPPY (WATKINS)

- 1) The final option in this break is 3 will come off of baseline screen from 5 along the baseline.
- 2) 4 will fill to the backside block now to cover up the weakside rebounding responsibilities.
- 3) This action should happen very quickly in transition, which will prevent the point guard from having to handle the basketball for too long at the top of the key.
