Brian Gregory on attacking zone offense:
 1. Attack the zone before it is set
 2. Get under, below and behind the zone.

In Tech's zone offense they like to start the posts up high. This will help relieve pressure on the wings against teams who will extend their zone.

On the first guard to wing pass(1 to 2) notice the zone does not move. They want to make the defense shift first. This allows the offense to find the holes in the zone. Once the ball is reversed 1 time then the posts will start their movement.

3 can hit 4. If the bottom defender comes to guard 4 then 5 will dive. 4 can also skip to 2.
